History and Mystery by Carl Chapman

When I was gifted a copy of Witherby's 'A Hand List of British Birds' for the Norfolk and Norwich Naturalists' Society research library, I initially didn't realise its significance. The book published in 1912 was the personal copy of Harry Pashley, a taxidermist that lived in Cley next the Sea on the north Norfolk coast during the late 19th and early 20th Century. Stitched into the binding were Harry's own personal notes.

'History and Mystery' is a 131pp transcript of those notes coupled with additional research and over 70 photographs of birds seen in north Norfolk.

The notes depict a different time before today's excellent optics when birdwatching was carried out with a gun. This led to the phrase 'what is hit is history, what is missed is mystery'. The history of why Cley and the Norfolk coast became so good for birdwatching is contained within its pages.

The price of £18 includes packaging and 2nd class postage within the UK. £15 collection.
